& Lady Criticises Some Little Mistaker Made at the Fair. RICHMOND, October 29, 1875. Editors of the Dispotch : I was not an exhibitor at the late State Fair, so may lay claim to the title of a disinterested party. May ! say a few words as to the awarding of some of the premiums? In the department of preserves, jellies, &c., I think there were several mistakes made. In the first place there were some beautiful jellies exhibited which were not on the list, and therefore received no premium. Would it not be better to have no limitation as to the kinds of preserves or jellies and to let the premiums be awarded to the best of each kind chtered? The canned fruits were opened and tasted, and some perfect straw- und blackberries were rejected on secount of their acidity. I thought all housekeepers knew that cannot fruit was not to be sweet; in short, was not a preserve. If it were there would be no need of air eighteens. I think the cans which were opened will spoil before the owners can remove them, and would suggest that in fature fae metal tops be unscrewed, and if the glass tops do not lift off the fruit is sir-tight, and consequently good. In this case a knife was employed to remove the glass tops. I also meticed that no attention seemed to be paid to the color of preserves, that rather to their being stiff and ropy. New, in these latter days a thick jelly or preserve is not conshake and quiver on being turned out of the glass is sought efter, but the contrary rale emed to work in this tase.

If this does not take up too much space! should be glad to see it in your columns. Respectfully yours, A Housewerper.

A Refected Inscription.

Editors of the Departch, - As an interesting item in connection with the impressive cere-W cember a moderately-sized HOUSE at a moderate rent. The advertiser makes this notice in the hope that some one may desire a tenant for such a house net earlier than that day; and that thus the convenience of two families may be promoted. Address DECEMBER, care of the Dispatch office. monies of last Tuesday I offer for record in your columns an inscription that was proposed for the statue of Jackson, Severation the most accomplished scholars in Wirginia were applied to for suggestions in regard to the inscription, and the following was written by a learned and distinguished professor at the University: To

Thomas Jonathan Jackson This Statue has been Erected

by Men of Kindred Tongue and Kindred Hear as a Tribute of England's Admiration for Virginia's Sonof the Mother's Sympathy with the Daughter's Woe.

(For the Dispatch Stonewall Jackson. The occasion of the unveiling of a statue to his memory, the cribule of British admiration to manly worth and military greatness.

Threshold the state of the state of the summons to her capital to-day. Soloiers, who for her honor bravely stood On fields of carnage, bathed in human blood; Fathers, who saw your homes in mins Me. And taught your valuat sons the way to die; Mothers, who to her cause did consecrate And gave your brightest lewels to the State—From each ancestral roof and humble home, From every city, county, vidage, come!

From every ckine, and nation of the earth,
From lordly hall, from place of hambie birth,
From desert wild, from island of the sea,
From despots' rule, from lands of liberty;
Where'er in human heart is virtue's strine,
And glorious deeds with fadeless splendor shine,
Where'er to anoble minds, a noble life,
Uprises grand, sublime, mid ceenes of war and strife;
We bid you come to join in the acclaim.
We welcome you to share our chief tains' fame.

To kingly power no monument we raise, To tyrant yield no tribute of our praise. We drag no conqueror's triumphal-car, Nor basely hope to share in spois of war.
No glare of burning homes light up his road,
No groaning slaves bend with their heavy load,
No widow's wait, no orphu's cry we hear,
No madman's curse, no trembing victim's pray
No warrior returns triumphing o'er his foes,
To havid his glary on a nations were. To build his glory on a nationis woes.

To Virtue's son, who sternly dared to tread The path of duty wheresoe'er it led; The Christian warrior trusting in his God. Who for his native State unsheathed his sword; The soloier, whose unrivalted deeds shall stand, To ado new instre to his nativelland; The patriot, who for country and its laws Went forth to buttle in that country's cause; The martyr in whose death the world shall see How gloriously a patriot dies for liberty.

Unveil the statue; it his deeds be shown In breathing bronze and animated stone; Upraise the monument to Jackson's worth, The noblest patriot of all the earth. Accept the tribute from the noble souls Tho twixt us seas divide and ocean rolls;—Accept the tribute, that the word, may know How immortality of fame from virtuous as immortality of fame from virtuous actions
